

University of San Francisco

Market/Value

Now on View at the Thacher Gallery

Artists

Reniel del Rosario
Kathryn Kenworth
Kevin Lopez Pardillo
Madi Reyes
Jasmine Ross
Jeffrey Sincich

turn the gallery into a marketplace with a series of storefronts exploring identity and nostalgia, empire and desire, ecology and place to reveal the ways that consumerism shapes our daily lives. Through a variety of art practices, these artists make us aware of the visual artifacts of capitalism that surround us and the cultures, histories, and values they reflect.

“All the planning and grocery ordering makes it easier to laugh and sing and get angry or sad with each other... and become less able to ever think of destroying each other.”

—Corita Kent, SCHLEISINGER LIBRARY

August 19 – November 10, 2026